With Cycled Central Air Conditioning, your air conditioner takes an occasional time out, while still keeping your home at a comfortable temperature. This helps to reduce electric costs and conserve energy on those hot, humid days.

With Cycled Central Air Conditioning REA installs, at no cost to you, a small radio receiver near your air conditioner that cycles the central air on and off at 15-minute intervals during peak demand days. Control times may be as many as 20-25 days per year and usually occur in the late afternoons and early evenings. Your furnace fan will continue to circulate cool air while the condenser cycles on and off. Installation is quick and you don't need to be home. Participation in the program will automatically carry forward every year.
